ANIMAL PRODUCTION AND HEALTH

Vector control and the elimination of gambiense human African trypanosomiasis (HAT) - Joint FAO/WHO Virtual Expert Meeting - 5-6 October 2021

Human African trypanosomiasis (HAT) is a vector-borne parasitic disease transmitted by tsetse flies in sub-Saharan Africa. The meeting reviewed tsetse control tools and found that vector control contributes to decreasing gambiense human African trypanosomiasis transmission by reducing tsetse-human contact.

DOI: <https://doi.org/10.4060/cb3873fr>

Strengthening national capacities of producer organizations - Oman, Synthesis report

This project aims at strengthening support for producer organizations in the fields of agriculture and fisheries in Oman. The findings suggest that a new law is needed to enable agricultural and fisheries producer organizations with sufficient flexibility and independence.

(Muscat, 60 pp.)

DOI: <https://doi.org/10.4060/cb8458en>

EVALUATION

Terminal evaluation of the project "Mainstreaming ecosystem-based approaches to climate-resilient rural livelihoods in vulnerable rural areas through the farmer field school methodology"

The evaluation finds that the project contributed to building the capacities of institutional actors and farmers' organizations in climate change adaptation, resilience and gender equity. The main achievements include a climate resilience fund, dissemination of climate information and training on climate change practices.
